1. A series of unpublished meetings took place in Szczecin (Stettin) from 10 to 20 September between the Central Committees of the Polish Workers' Party (PPR - Polska Partja Robotnicza) and the Polish Socialist Party (PPS - Polska Partja Socjalistyczna) of Western Pomerania. The topic discussed was the proposed merger of the two parties into a Polish Workers' Socialist Party (RPPS).
2. On 13 September 1947, Przetacznik, Chief Secretary of the PPS for the vojevodship of Western Pomerania and editor of a newspaper in Szczecin, spoke strongly against the merger.
3. The PPS has political control of the railroad employees and the employees of the alcohol monopoly, whereas the PPR controls the militia and the tobacco monopoly.
